

EVGA's latest e-GeForce 7 Series product, the 7900 GS, to include up to 3 bundled games

Brea, California and Munich, Germany - Wednesday, September 6, 2006 □ EVGA Corporation, one of the leading-edge 3D processor and motherboard manufacturers, today added a new product to its premier product family, the e-GeForce 7 Series. The EVGA e-GeForce 7900 GS will be bundled with up to three free games. EVGA will also be offering HDCP Enabled versions of this product.

Designed for extreme HD gaming, the NVIDIA® SLI®-Ready GeForce® 7900 GS graphics processing units (GPUs) deliver the most graphics performance bang for your buck, including ultra-realistic gaming experiences and resolutions up to 2560x1600. A 256-bit memory interface and fast GDDR3 memory enable blazing graphics performance with maximum quality so you don't have to choose between frame rates and image quality. The GeForce 7900 GS also delivers smooth, high-definition video playback and crisp picture quality thanks to its advanced NVIDIA® PureVideo® technology. If you are searching for an extreme HD gaming and video experience on the PC, look no further than a GeForce 7900 GS.

All 7900 GS cards will be hard bundled with Hitman: Blood Money. In addition, the first 1000 users to register for the bonus promotion will also receive a free copy of HalfLife2: Episode 1. On top of that, the first 500 users to register will also receive a free copy of Dark Messiah: Might and Magic when it is released.

Products will be available starting September 6, 2006 through EVGA's network of leading E-tailers, retailers, systems integrators, OEM system manufacturers and distributors.
